HAPPY DEMOCRATS.

Mt. Zion Celebrates Democratic Victory. A Feast Worthy of the Ladies—Music, Speeches and General Rejoicing.

The Review Office Honored

The democrats of Mt. Zion celebrated the democratic victory in a becoming manner last night. Ladies of that township, aided by their good husbands and brothers, prepared a banquet to which many guests were invited. It was a village and township talk for several days, and although repaid—predicted failure, everything led to the happiest and most successful termination. It was a feast of good things, an abundance and too much to spare. A large agricultural room was vacated for the purpose, and tables were arranged for the banquet. Invited guests were first served, after which table after table was filled and vacated, till all were fed. Nothing happened to mar the pleasure of the occasion. It would be improper to attempt to make any distinctions where all the ladies vied with each other to make the occasion a success.

After supper the crowd led by the Hibernian band of this city, adjourned to Seminary Hall, which had been comfortably prepared for the occasion. There was music and dancing and merry making generally. C. A. Durfee was called out to entertain the audience with a speech, which he did in manner to bring down the house. He concluded by calling on the editor of the Review to sing a comic song. Now he is a singer, as one reader all know, but his new crew, B. K. Durfee, W. M. Boyd, B. E. Pratt, P. Perl, W. Bering, C. Randolph, I. A. Buckingham, E. R. Eldridge, W. T. Cusins, Benj. Smith, and others were in turn called upon, and responded in songs suitable to the occasion. Before adjourning, on behalf of the Misses Smith, Miss Williams presented to the Review office an elegant mounted Game Rooster, which will in future grace our office. Thanks were returned for the gift by D. S. Jack and company.

On motion of the council adjourned, but a few minutes after was again called to order to consider the profile of grades established by B. Williams, the Chicago engineer. They were accepted and the council adjourned.

"UNCLE DICK."

Governor-Elect Oglesby Tended a Complimentary Serenade.

For several days Governor-Elect R. J. Oglesby has been visiting the family of Hon. J. J. Peddercock and last evening the republicans tendered him complimentary serenade. They met at the court house and about 8 o'clock headed by Goodman's band, proceeded to the Peddercock mansion, on the northeast corner of the city park. Arriving there the band entered the yard and played a medley entitled, "Sweet Rose," at the conclusion of which Governor Oglesby appeared on the front porch. A number of prominent republicans met him and Senator Rogers, informed him that he had been called on by friends and citizens of his old home to congratulate him on his election and to hear him make a few remarks. Governor Oglesby then spoke substantially as follows:

SENATOR ROGERS, FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS.—No greater compliment can be paid any man than the character of this. Such demonstrations by one's old neighbors and friends touch the heart of any public man. This moment is to show your gratification of the result of the state election. And if I may be vain enough to think so, as a personal compliment to me. This has been a remarkable political campaign. A general feature of it has been the prevalence of good nature and yet the severe personal criticisms. Political revolutions always come from the people themselves. This has been a peaceful one and yet so marked that the old republican party retires and the democratic party comes into power. You are not accustomed to such victories and many consequences will follow it. Now that the bitter campaign is over and we fall back as citizens again, we can easily look at the consequences of the change. After all it is one country and every citizen owes devotion to his flag and country. All should contribute to the law and good order of our country. It is a duty we owe next to love for God, owing to our own state it has fallen to my lot to be governor. In a few weeks I will take the oath of office and look to the administration of law in our own state, to look after all public institutions, to look after the judicial and executive departments of the state government, and also see that I shall conduct myself as not to bring reflection on our state. Law and order and peace and prosperity are the first principles of government. You may say I have had the experience of having once before been governor. It is twenty years since I was elected the first time. Important changes have been made since then. We have grown to be 3,000,000 of people in this state, and the next census will show an increase to 4,000,000 of people, with greater wealth and intelligence and higher aspirations. All looking forward to better our personal condition.

Our state ticket was elected but our national ticket was defeated, and as you, our state legislature is in doubt, I don't know how it will result. As far as I am concerned it was a victory. Don't want to offend any one who voted against me. We have the state on our hands or rather I have it. Republicans all know whatever defects I may have and even the democrats considerate in this direction. I could not hide my character. You need not expect anything great of me. I will try for my regard of you and the state of Illinois to conduct myself as not to bring disgrace to you, my neighbors, or on our state. A meeting of this kind always touches my heart. It always recalls the recollections of the time fifty years ago that I came here a poor and ignorant boy and always makes me feel doing a great deal of good in the remaining years of my life. God bless our state and nation and I bid you good night, friends, with my best blessing.

When Governor Oglesby had completed his speech a large number of friends pressed forward to grasp him by the hand. As they shook hands with him they passed through the hall of the mansion and out of a side door. For several minutes the governor was kept busy greeting his friends, while the band played a pretty piece. After the impromptu reception the band played another selection and the crowd withdrew.

It meant death to both the great parties and the advent of a new and vigorous party yet unnamed. In future economic and social questions in America must come to the front.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Recent official correspondence in regard to the Congo has been published. The letter of Prince Bismarck dated June 17 says: "There is no one more to be trusted." Anti-Portuguese treaty will be generally recognized" in a reply to this dated June 3, Earl Granville, the British Foreign Secretary, says: "Owing to the fundamental character of Germany's objection the treaty has been generally recognized." He then proposes to arrange with Germany for a River Commission. After further negotiations Prince Bismarck proposed calling a Conference of Powers to discuss the whole Congo question. Earl Granville at once accepted the proposal.
